Types of cookies
Based on the characteristics and use of cookies we can distinguish different categories:

Technical cookies, or strictly necessary. These cookies are essential for the proper functioning of the site. The duration of cookies is usually limited to the work session (the browser is closed and deleted).

Analysis and performance cookies. These cookies are used to collect and analyze the traffic and use of the site anonymously. These cookies, even without identifying the user, allow, for example, to detect if the same user returns to connect at different times. They also allow you to monitor the system and improve its performance and usability.

Profiling cookies. These are permanent cookies used to identify (anonymously or not) user preferences and improve their browsing experience. The www.annamariabonesi.com website does not use cookies of this type.

Third-party cookies. By visiting a website, you may receive cookies from both the visited site ("owners") and from sites managed by other organizations ("third parties"). A notable example is the presence of "social plugins" for Facebook, Twitter, Google+ and LinkedIn. These are parts of the page visited generated directly by the aforementioned sites and integrated into the page of the host site. The most common use of social plugins is aimed at sharing content on social networks. The presence of these plugins involves the transmission of cookies to and from all sites managed by third parties. The management of information collected by "third parties" is governed by the relevant information to which reference is made.

AddThis
AddThis is a third-party widget, integrated into websites to allow easy sharing of pages and content on the most popular social networks, to send them via email or print them. Through its own cookies, AddThis stores the number of shares on a page, and proposes, based on shared contents, advertisements on products and services that may be of interest to the user.
